Our Values

Paradox Sports recognizes the power of community engagement, personal growth, compassion, dignity, having fun, and irreverence for those who say we can't.

Position Summary

In partnership with Disabled Sports USA (DSUSA), Paradox Sports' new On-The-Job (OJT) training program for Veterans with disabilities provides an opportunity to develop skills to help launch a career in the adaptive sports and/or climbing industry, or create a pathway to volunteerism in support other Veterans with disabilities. Trainees will assist in developing and delivering adaptive climbing opportunities at Vertical World Climbing Gym and within the greater Seattle community. Per DSUSA funding requirements, this position must be filled by a Veteran who has a permanent physical disability and is in good standing.

The trainee will work closely with a mentor at the host site (i.e. climbing gym) and Paradox Sports National Program Manager to develop and/or deliver an adaptive climbing night (2 hrs), which will occur three times per month. The trainee will also work cooperatively with the local VA and other community partners in order to achieve outreach to grow the local adaptive climbing community and provide climbing opportunities to Veterans with disabilities.

The trainee will receive a stipend based on hours worked, and reports to the National Program Manager within Paradox Sports. Key metrics will be measured quarterly i.e. number of programs per month, number of participants per program with a goal of achieving the following by end of year:

0-3 months: 4 veteran participants/4 volunteers
3-6 months: 6 veteran participants/6 volunteers
6-9 months: 8 veteran participants/8 volunteers
