

Unfortunately, due to the nature of our programs, Paradox Sports has a no pets policy. If you have a service animal that you plan to bring with you on a program, please read below to understand our service animal agreement.

Paradox Sports, in accordance with the ADA, defines a service animal as dogs that are individually trained to do work or perform tasks for people with disabilities. Examples of such work or tasks include guiding people who are blind, alerting people who are deaf, pulling a wheelchair, alerting and protecting a person who is having a seizure, reminding a person with mental illness to take prescribed medications, calming a person with Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD) during an anxiety attack, or performing other duties. Service animals are working animals, not pets. The work or task a dog has been trained to provide must be directly related to the person's disability. Dogs whose sole function is to provide comfort or emotional support do not qualify as service animals under the ADA.

You are responsible for your service dog and its actions. A service animal must be under the control of its handler. Per ADA requirements, service animals must be harnessed, leashed, or tethered, unless the individual's disability prevents using these devices or these devices interfere with the service animal's safe, effective performance of tasks. In that case, the individual must maintain control of the animal through voice, signal, or other effective controls.

If your dog is not under control or it is negatively affecting other participants and/or the safety of our program through excessive barking, lunging/jumping, growling, biting, or by other means, you will receive a verbal warning and be asked to remedy the situation. If the behavior continues after a warning and trying to find a reasonable solution, you will be asked to remove your dog from the program.
